HANCOCK WAS RIGHT

Says John W. Gates on Return From Europe—The Tariff a Local Question.

"The United States is entering into a period of the greatest prosperity the world has ever seen," said John W. Gates, who returned on the George Washington from Europe recently. Mr. Gates was interviewed on the deck of the steamer. He said he didn't see what difference it made whether U. S. Steel was listed on the Paris Bourse or not, for he guessed a quarter of a million Steel common shares were owned in France now. Some of the French bankers and steel makers would oppose the listing of Steel common, he said, but that didn't mean it wouldn't be listed after some obstacles were got around.

"The Safest Place to Invest
"Europe knows," he said, "that there is only one safe place to invest, and that is America."

"Whether Steel is listed on the Bourse or not, there will be a great many shares sold over there. The French investor receives on the average only 3 or 3 1/2 per cent., and has hard work to get 3 1/2."

"Each year I come back I am more bullish on America and American securities, because I see the possibilities here and the impossibilities on the other side. Taxes are very high in England and Germany. There has been a large increase of taxation in Germany."

Mr. Gates was asked if the rich were alarmed at this taxation.

"Rich Men Do Not Control
"I do not believe that the very wealthy men of England control her politics any more than they do here," he replied. "It is the trudge that carries the dinner-pail and the torch that controls politics in America. The vote of the man worth $1,000 counts for as much as the vote of a man worth $1,000,000."

"I have been a Republican all my life, but I can see the value of getting in all the free raw materials we can to open up all the free American workshops. We have got to have free raw material if we want to be a great manufacturing country."

"Wouldn't Canada run us out of the market on free lumber?"

"You must remember that if we buy our lumber in Canada our forests will be growing. If Canada cuts all her forests then we will save ours. It is like wheat and cotton—a question of supply and demand. No matter what conditions are in the United States, supply and demand will ultimately govern."

"General Hancock, although people laughed at him, was right when he said: 'The tariff is purely a local question.'"

"What of the tariff in the hands of the Conferees' Committee in Congress, the surplus piling up in the banks and manufacturers accumulating their surplus?" Mr. Gates was asked.

Prophecies a Boom
"Two years ago," said he, "I made a statement that people would wear their old clothes, and now they are surprised to find out how much money they have saved. I said in 1907 that the people would economize. The extent of this economy is shown in the bank deposits today. Two years' economy means a world of money."

"I think we are going into the period of the greatest prosperity that the world has ever seen."

TELEPHONE RATE SETTLED

County Phone Contracts to Be Renewed on Compromise Basis.

The following communication from Division Manager Budd of the American Union Telephone Company is self-explanatory and settles the dispute between the Merchants' Telephone Committee and the company over a proposed increase in the annual rental:

Bedford, Pa., July 24, 1909.
Merchants' Telephone Committee,
Bedford, Pa.

Gentlemen:—
I am in receipt of letter from our company advising that your report has been considered and accepted, that is in so far as the rate is concerned.

I am advised by Mr. Robb to proceed to re-write all the subscribers and in connection would say that inasmuch as there has been some objection to the contract it might be well for the committee to examine our agreement and point out the objections to me personally.

I would be glad to have you give this your immediate attention as it is my desire to have the matter straightened up just as soon as possible.

Yours very truly,

J. T. BUDD,
Division Manager.

The proposal of the Merchants' Committee was to accept an increase to $18 per annum. The company's intention was to increase the rental to $24. The increase applies to business phones only.

RE-OPENING SERVICES

Held in Hyndman M. E. Church Last Sunday.

Special services were rendered last Sunday at the opening of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Hyndman. The building had been renovated and remodeled, over $500 having been spent in improvements, which were recently completed. The Ladies' Aid Society presented the church with a handsome tapestry brussels carpet costing $275.

Rev. J. W. H. Beale of Baltimore delivered sermons at both the morning and evening services, at which times sufficient money was raised to pay off all the balance of the money expended in the alterations to the church. An elaborate musical program was rendered and the church was crowded at both services. The music was especially fine, the regular choir being assisted by eleven instrumentalists. Dr. S. Lua Sykes of Cumberland played a violin solo and James Bond of Frostburg sang; a quartette from the Frostburg M. E. Church rendered several fine selections.

The congregation feels greatly elated at the completion of the alterations to their building, and under the guidance of the pastor, Rev. J. H. Jeffries, start off with renewed energy and ambition to add to their numbers and to aid the growth of the church.

A special invitation is extended to all members of Council, and to the ladies who are vitally interested in the water supply and the suppression of dust.

The Court House bell will ring and it is hoped that all who can will respond.

KILLED BY BURSTING WHEEL

S. H. Morgan Meets Death in Bean's Cove.

Scott Herbert Morgan, who lived in Bean's Cove, about ten miles from Cumberland, was killed last Friday by the fly wheel of a traction engine, which he was operating at Bean's Cove, bursting. His leg was cut, the femoral artery being severed, and his lungs were crushed by the flying iron. Dr. A. P. Twigg of Flintstone was summoned, but death ensued before his arrival.

The governor belt flew off and the fly wheel revolved so rapidly that it burst. The engine was attached to a threshing machine, which was being operated by Mr. Morgan, who went from farm to farm. He is survived by his wife and family.

Saxton Shops May be Moved

According to a current report it is possible that the shops of the H. & B. T. M. R. R. now located at Saxton may be moved to Huntingdon.

Since the strike now on on the road the experiment of running freight trains through from Huntingdon to Mt. Dallas has been tried, and it is thought to be more economical than changing crews at Saxton as has heretofore been done.

Should this course be adopted it is probable that the shops will be removed to long siding, close Huntingdon, though the report has not been verified by the officials of the road.

Two young men were taken before Justice George R. Imler of Woodbury last week to answer charges preferred against them of stealing cattle on Tussey mountains near that place, and attempting to sell them in Saxton. The men were taken to jail, there to await the decision of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Another week of the strike of the engine and trainmen of the H. & B. T. M. R. R. finds the situation, on the surface, the same as a week ago. No break has been made in the ranks of the strikers. The company is moving its passenger trains about on time and is putting considerable freight traffic over the road. At no place is there congestion of great consequence, though the coal traffic on the branches is limited. A mass meeting was held at Huntingdon Tuesday night.

MIDLAND WILL BE COMPLETED

Ties and Rails Now Here—Work Will Be Pushed.

That the unfinished section of the Bedford and Hollidaysburg Railroad—Midland—will be built there is little doubt. A number of cars of ties and rails arrived here this week to be used in the construction.

A prominent citizen of Altoona quotes Engineer Crawford as saying that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has already granted the necessary appropriation and this new feeder to the Pennsylvania system will be finished within four months' time. Mr. Crawford has assumed charge of the corps of engineers. An office and general headquarters were opened on the Kemp farm at East Freedom and a long distance telephone installed. Pennsylvania Railroad linemen began the work last Friday of installing phones at the homes of fifteen members of the wreck crew that will be assembled in the East Hollidaysburg yards about August 1. This fact presages the early reopening of the yards. The linemen will also run two wires from the AD tower in the yards along the line of the proposed railroad, through Freedom and Greenfield Townships, to Imier Station, there to connect up with the line for Bedford.

Ties are now being assembled at Hollidaysburg.

LOOKING AND SEEING

There is a Marked Difference Between These Two Acts.

THE POWER OF OBSERVATION

It Should Be Cultivated Even in the Most Ordinary Things—A Faculty That is Possessed by All, but That is Developed by the Few.

It is the hope and desire of all parents that their children shall make some sort of a mark in the world when they grow up. They do not in the majority of cases expect that their offspring will become famous and make names that will live for ages, but they cherish the thought that they will be successful men and women in some profession or business. That is the keynote—that success shall be their portion.

Yet it is a fact that most parents neglect or pay very little attention to one part of the child's education which is of the highest importance. They do not train the perceptive faculties.

Power of observation will help you more than anything else in your struggle for existence, and yet there are comparatively few people who are keen observers. One small fact will prove this latter statement. The man who observes everything, he who sees everything he looks at, is singled out either as an inquisitive person or a clever one, and this shows that he is an exception.

It is easy to give instances of this lack of perception even in the ordinary things of life. Some years ago an artist engaged in a London firm of printers had to draw an advertisement in which the central figure was a cock in the act of crowing. Nothing seemed easier, but when he set to work the artist found himself confronted by a difficulty—does the cock show its tongue prominently when it crows? Every one of the hundred men employed by the firm had seen a cock crow scores of times, yet not one of them could answer the question. The artist had to go to a friend who kept fowls and chase the poor rooster round and round the yard until it crowed.

A schoolmaster, wishing to test the perception of his boys, asked them how many times they had seen a cow or pictures of that animal and found, as he had expected, that all the boys had seen the creature more times than they could remember. Then he offered to give small prizes to the boys who could correctly answer this question: "Are a cow's ears above, below, in front of or behind its horns?" Only two boys gained prizes, and their answers were guesswork.

Now sit down and test yourself in some such simple manner. You have all seen a horse "down." Can you describe how it rises? Does it get up on its fore feet first and then on its hind feet, or does it kneel first, then get on its hind feet and finally on its fore feet?

However, you need not confine yourself to the animal kingdom in testing your perceptive faculties. Many subjects will suggest themselves to you. As an excuse for this want of observation it is often urged that "a man can't know everything," but the excuse is a bad one. There is a great difference between knowing little or nothing and knowing everything. When the faculty has been trained it requires no more effort to note the points of the object looked at than it does to glance at that same object and come away none the wiser.

The chances of success in life are on the side of the man who knows certain things because he has learned about them by using his senses instead of having to go to a book for all that he wishes to know. Books are indispensable, as there are so many things which cannot come within the range of our observation, but wherever possible we should use our senses to acquire knowledge at first hand.

This will explain why men who cannot read or write have built up substantial businesses. They have made use of the power possessed by all, but cultivated by very few.

The perceptive faculty must be trained during childhood and youth. After the completion of the twentieth year very little progress can be made. A grown man is unable to develop his powers of observation to any satisfactory degree. Youth is full of energy, and that is the time to inculcate the lesson that we should see all that our eyes rest upon.

It should be the object of every parent to teach his child to note every object that comes in his way. When out for a walk in a park the child should be told to observe the shapes of the leaves on the different trees, the paling of the color of animals toward the under part of the body, and so on, and should be told that when asked a question on the subject he must be prepared to say that it is so, not that he thinks it is.

All children have inquiring minds, and after a walk or two, coupled with such instruction as we have mentioned, you will find the child making great progress and acquiring a quality that will be invaluable in after life.

One of the methods adopted by Houdin, the conjurer, for quickening the perception of his son was to make him walk rapidly past a shop window or a stall on which a number of articles were displayed and then write down a list of the objects noticed. At first only half a dozen articles were perceived during the moment occupied in passing the store or window, but after having done it once a day for a month he was able to make a list of thirty objects.—Pearson's Weekly.

GIRLS WE LIKE TO MEET

To Which Class Do You Belong, Reader?

The girl who makes us think she has been pining to see us. She may have not been, but her assumption is pleasing to our self esteem.

She who has some graceful word of praise. Pounds of taffy may cloy but the occasional piece goes to the spot.

The girl who laughs. The girl who can calm us down. When the flame of ire is stirred it is easier to find those who will throw on fuel than be an extinguisher.

She who stops for a kindly greeting, though we know that she can ill spare the time. The few minutes of our busy friends are more prized than hours from the girl who is trying to kill time.

The girl who has the latest news. We may disapprove of malice in gossip, but most of us will not seek for ear cotton when simple gossip comes our way.

The girl with whom we can afford to let off steam. There are few among our friends who are trustworthy enough to prove safety valves. Their intention is usually better than their discretion.

She who can make our day brighter. There are some people who can put a damper on our whole day without resorting to a word. A cheer-bringer is a mascot.

The girl who is always the same. Variety is an over-estimated virtue when it is found in the disposition of our friends.

The girl who leaves us quite in love with ourselves. Meeting some women is like an unexpected glimpse in a distorting mirror; our after-humility is painful.—Buffalo Courier.

Chocolate and Egg Milk-Shake

Chocolate and egg milk-shakes are extremely nutritious, which makes them very desirable for children's luncheons, and the little folks are usually very fond of them. It is well to always have on hand the chocolate syrup from which they may be made. Melt four squares of unsweetened chocolate, and add one and three-fourths cupfuls of sugar and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water. Stir until smooth, bring to the boiling-point, and let boil five minutes. Cool, and turn into a jar. Keep in the ice-box to use as needed.—Woman's Home Companion for August.

To Brush the Teeth

The proper method is to brush those in the upper jaw down, and in the lower jaw up, and to brush the gums as well as the teeth. This forms a sort of healthful massage to them, which stimulates circulation and prevents disease.

Booth's Balm cures PILES

The pain, the agony, the discomfort of piles are all quickly put to rout by Booth's Balm, the powerful, eucalyptus, antiseptic ointment.

It relieves in five minutes; it cures to stay cured in a few days. Its soothing, healing properties penetrate right into the seat of the disease, and stop all inflammation, itching and distress in a very short time.

And Booth's Balm is so low in price that any sufferer can afford to use it. A big box costs only 25 cents, and it is an almost miraculous remedy for scalds, burns, earache, erysipelas, eczema, sore throat and chest, chafing and itching of skin, sores, chapped hands and face.

It is highly efficient in curing skin diseases, such as pimples and blackheads.

F. W. Jordan sells Booth's Balm and will recommend it.

His Mean Revenge

"I've met a great many mean, spiteful men in my time," said Gladys, "but Harry Morton is certainly the spitefullest of them all!"

"What's the matter now?" asked her chum, Marie. "I thought it was all off and done with."

"So it is!" answered Gladys decisively. "I'm not referring to our broken engagement—broken beyond repair, thank Heaven—but to his subsequent actions."

"What on earth has he done?"

"What has he done? This is what he has done! He's sent me half a dozen boxes of face-powder, with a note stating that inasmuch as we had returned to each other everything that had passed between us he thought it only right that I should have the powder, seeing that he must have taken at least that much home on his coat since the time he first met me!"—August Lippincott's.

HAVE YOU TRIED IT?

To Secure a Good Night's Sleep in Hot Weather.

Pour cold water into a hot-water bag until it is about half full. Screw the top partly on, then with one hand squeeze the upper part of the bag until all the air has been excluded; tighten the top, and a soft, pliable pillow will result. Wrap this in a towel or slip the bag inside a pillowcase, and lay your head so that it will be at the back of the neck. In a few moments the most delicious, cooling sensation will pervade your body, and sleep will quickly follow. When I first tried this, my friends prophesied cold, pneumonia and rheumatism; but I consulted two physicians, who assured me that there was not the slightest danger; the heat from the body will soon heat the water in the bag, and in the morning you will be surprised to find that you have passed a comfortable night.—Household Information and Economies, in The Ladies' World for August.

Are The Schools at Fault?

The country is gaining on the city steadily, but not fast enough; and the reason is just this one of ignorance. The schools are doing all they can to spoil farm boys, giving them all sorts of information except about what constitutes farm life. In this way the best of them are tumbled into the city chaos, and it is hard work to counteract this drift, and locate the tried-out city folk in gardens. We are gaining, however, and the percentage of the increase of population that faces countryward is double that of 1890. Huge cities are no longer needed. We do not need to concentrate wealth or to use it in the bulk. We have got our huge enterprises that required syndicates and trusts, off our hands; and now the great problem is to secure a more equitable distribution of the wealth we have acquired. We must also vastly increase our production in order to feed the enormously growing population; and at least one-half of our non-producers, who now make up what is called the laboring class, and a good many of the capitalists as well, must be got into a position where they can create food for themselves, and add to the big surplus needed for others.—E. P. Powell, in the Outlook Magazine for August.

Making Money On the Farm

V.—Wheat Raising

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"

Copyright, 1909, by American Press
Association

ONE of the most important grain crops grown in this country is wheat. It is second in value and acreage only to corn. Notwithstanding the great importance of the wheat crop but little attention has been paid to improved methods of culture. Wheat is largely looked upon as an extensive crop. Most farms in the wheat belt are large. This is especially true of the spring wheat belt in northwestern United States and southern Canada. It is no uncommon sight there to see a section or more in one field. Wheat follows wheat year after year. Little live stock is kept, and no manure is applied to the land. Under this treatment the seemingly exhaust-less supply of fertility is becoming worn out. The humus especially has been used rapidly, with no source of renewal. Usually it does not take more than a decade of continuous wheat growing to reduce the yield one-half. Conditions in the winter wheat belt are not so bad, but there is much room for improvement there also. Not only is continuous wheat growing hard on the soil, but it does not distribute the work evenly throughout the year. In the spring there is a rush to get the seed in. In the fall there is a still greater rush to get the crop harvested and thrashed. The rest of the year there is little to do. What the wheat farmer needs is diversification—more live stock, more crops and rotation. The wheat belt and the corn belt should be mixed up more. Many farmers in the corn belt raise wheat as one of the leading small grain crops. Many others would find it profitable to do so.

Classes of Wheat.

Wheat is divided into two general classes—winter and spring. Winter wheat is sown in the fall, makes a considerable growth and comes up and heads out the next season. Spring wheat is sown in the spring in much the same manner as oats. In Minnesota, the Dakotas and other states of the same latitude or farther north spring wheat is the only kind that can be grown successfully since the severe winters are fatal to the fall sown varieties. In the northwest, however, the warm winds from the Pacific moderate the climate that winter wheat can be grown successfully. Farther south, in the winter wheat belt, the bulk of the wheat is sown in the fall.

There are many objections to winter wheat. It does not make as high a quality of flour owing to the smaller gluten content. It is the gluten that gives the gummy consistence to bread dough that causes it to rise when mixed with yeast. Winter wheat occasionally winter kills, resulting in a loss of the seed and the work of seeding. The most serious objection in the corn belt is that it does not work in well after corn, which is the accustomed place for small grain in the rotation. These objections are overbalanced, however, by its greater yielding ability. The start which it gets in the fall enables it to come up much more vigorously in the spring and give about twice as many bushels per acre as can be obtained from the spring varieties.

Wheat is further subdivided into hard and soft varieties. The soft wheat makes a flour that is unsuited to breadmaking because of its lack of gluten. It is used extensively in making crackers. The amount of soft wheat grown for market is comparatively small.

A new variety of wheat known as macaroni has been introduced into the western states within the last few years. It is very high in gluten and is much used in the manufacture of macaroni. It does not make a very high quality of bread owing to its yellow color. The chief advantage of macaroni wheat is that it can be grown in regions where the rainfall is too scanty for the standard varieties.

Will Wheat Run Out?

There is a widespread impression that wheat will run out if grown in the same locality for a number of years. Experiments at a number of stations show that this is not so. The real cause for wheat running out is continuous culture on the same land, with little attention paid to seed selection. Another fact that experiments have brought out is that the standard varieties are superior to most of the new ones. Every year seedsmen make claims of wonderful yields obtained from new varieties, not only of wheat, but of other crops as well. In most cases these claims are entirely unfounded. Before introducing a new variety it will pay to write to your expert station for information regarding it. Even if they recommend it the safest plan is to try only a few acres at first until you see whether or not it is adapted to your particular locality.

Where winter wheat can be grown it will pay to raise it in spite of its disadvantages. It can be worked into the rotation by sowing it after oats in a rotation of corn, oats, wheat, clover. The clover seed may be scattered on the ground among the wheat plants early in the spring. Another method of using winter wheat in the rotation is to cut the corn early for silage or fodder and sow the wheat on the corn stubble ground. The trouble with this method is that it is usually so late before the corn can be got off the ground that the wheat does not get enough of a start to enable it to withstand an extra severe winter. There is an advantage in having wheat follow corn or some other cultivated crop in that the weeds will bother much less. The work of seeding is also less since the ground does not need to be plowed.

Preparing the Ground.

Wheat, like oats, needs a firm seed bed. Corn ground which has been run over twice with a disk is an ideal seed bed. It is fine and mellow on top and firm beneath. There is nothing to prevent the capillary moisture from rising rapidly to the loose top layer, where it is held just where the roots need it. When wheat follows some other small grain the ground is so hard that, except in the case of very loose soils, the disk will have little effect on it. Such ground must be plowed. Plowing for wheat does not need to be very deep. Many farmers practice burning the stubble before plowing, since in this way many insects and weeds are destroyed, and the capillary connection is restored quicker. Some humus is lost in this way, but the advantages gained in many cases make it more profitable to obtain the needed humus in some other way.

The soil should be well disked and harrowed after plowing to make a fine, compact seed bed. With wheat, as with oats, considerably better yields are obtained by the use of a drill. In loose or dry soils the press drill is of big advantage. The wheels that follow pack the soil over the seed. This brings the soil into closer contact with the wheat grains, and they will absorb moisture faster and begin to grow sooner. This quickness of starting is of much importance in fall sown wheat near the northern limit of the winter wheat belt, since there everything depends on the wheat making a good growth before the ground freezes. Earliness of seeding is important for the same reason. If you cannot get your winter wheat in early—and by early is meant the first half of September—it is better to wait until spring and sow a spring variety.

The ground for spring wheat should be prepared in much the same manner as for oats. The rate of seeding where a drill is used should be five or six pecks to the acre, with either spring or winter varieties. When sown broadcast about a peck more will be needed. If there is much smut present the seed should be treated as outlined for oat smut in article No. 4. The seed should be fanned and graded and tested for germination.

Rotation in Wheat Farming.

In the great spring wheat regions the introduction of a crop of clover every two or three years will materially increase the yield. The growing of clover will mean some live stock to eat it, and the manure thus obtained will still further increase the wheat yields. The introduction of some of the other grain and forage crops will equalize the demands upon the soil and add to the profits obtained from the farm. Experiments at the Minnesota station showed an increase of 50 per cent, or seven bushels to the acre, in wheat following cultivated crops over wheat grown continuously.

Dairying fits in very well with wheat farming, especially in localities so far north that corn cannot be successfully grown as a grain crop. In such districts the flint varieties can be raised for silage and fodder. The wheat following this corn will be freer from rust, scab and weeds and will yield much more. The cows will yield a good profit for all the feed they consume, and the work will be more evenly distributed throughout the year.

When wheat is grown to be sold to the flour mills the price will depend directly upon the quality. To get the best quality wheat should not be cut until it is fully ripe. It should not be allowed to stand too long after it is ripe or it will shell out badly. Wheat should be well shocked and capped. If not well capped the bran will be come stained and cracked, injuring the appearance and lowering the price. Stacking is more advisable than shock thrashing since it means better quality and more fall plowing.

So much depends on the quality of the grain and the quality is so dependent on cultivation and harvesting that it behooves him who is after satisfactory results to make a close study of the situation. It does not pay to cultivate wheat intelligently and harvest it in a manner that makes all previous care and labor of little avail.

Describing Courses of Study at Pennsylvania State College.

The Pennsylvania State College has issued a bulletin giving full information about the courses of study offered in the School of Agriculture and Experiment Station. It describes the work required in the seven four years' courses and the two years' course and makes interesting reading for any one who wishes to know the kind of training that is given young men who want to become expert farmers, or teachers, or experimenters. A study of the pages of this bulletin is convincing that the instruction is most practical. A young man fitted for entrance to college usually selects one of the four years' courses. The two years' course is designed for those who want instruction in agriculture but have not time or opportunity to fit themselves for a full college course, or else do not see their way clear to spend four years in college. The two years' course can be taken without any entrance examinations.

Last year the School of Agriculture enrolled 108 men in the freshman class, 55 men in the sophomore, 25 in the junior, and 16 in the senior. The enrollment in the two years' course was 40. Ninety persons entered the winter courses of twelve weeks.

The bulletin is free. It gives the dates for the beginning of all courses, including the winter courses and "farmers' week." Ask for the "May Bulletin," addressing the School of Agriculture and Experiment Station, State College, Pa.

Give Chickens Large Runs

Houses and runs should be in proportion. It is seldom that the yards are large enough to keep the fowls active and healthy. In cities and villages it is no unusual sight to see a good-sized house and a run no larger than the house in the area covered. The result is a perfectly bare and often filthy ground plot. The area of the yard should be at least ten times that of the house in which the birds are kept, and if the yard is larger, it will not be of excessive size. In fact, you cannot give the hens too much range and if you cannot give them free range, the area of the run should be so large that part of it will remain green through the entire growing season.

The Greater Character

A man, no matter how capable, how theoretically wise or how singly successful, can find little satisfaction in isolation, for there is no glamor of romance in his career. Some one has said that the kingdom of romance belongs to David, not Samson—lo David with his loving, generous, friendly nature, for whom three men went in jeopardy of life to bring him a drink of water—and all for love of him.

Harness for Horses

A good horse collar is the chief part of the harness, and it should be of the very best kind and fit the animal's neck perfectly. It should be kept clean at all times and the horse's shoulders well washed and brushed each day. Much dirt and dust arise in the fields and on the roads at this season, and these are caught and held on the moist and sweaty shoulders, there to form hard lumps and ridges. Every time the collar is put on the horse it should be examined for these lumps and ridges. If any are found they should be carefully brushed and rubbed away. After each day's work bathe and clean the shoulders with a mixture of warm water, salt and soda.

In the Sick Room

Months spent in a sick room have taught many things for the comfort of an invalid, one of the simplest and most effective of which is burning a string to purify the atmosphere.

Take a soft string and stick it with a pin to the back of a chair; after lighting, blow it out gently, leaving the tiny spark, which will create smoke enough to make a decided difference in the atmosphere.

Care of Hands

Hands that are moist and clammy without perspiring may be made more comfortable by washing and brushing them in tepid water in which a few grains of alum or a few drops of aromatic sulphuric acid have been dissolved. Dry them with a rough towel and then dust the palms with infant powder or with powdered starch and Florentine orris mixed, wiping the superfluous powder off with a soft handkerchief.

Only Way to Win Friendship

Friendliness is a virtue of virtues. Until you are drift among persons unfriendly, you do not realize the value of a responsive companion. Many persons called cold and quiet are only timid. The circumstances of their life have made them diffident. No word of friendliness is lost. Scatter kindness freely and your reward will come.

Peculiarities of Crime.

One of the strangest peculiarities of human nature is its inclination to imitate the misdeeds of others. Crime is epidemic. A particularly dreadful murder, the details of which are set forth in all the newspapers, often has the effect of inducing similar crimes. One of the reasons and probably the chief reason why public executions were abolished in England was that instead of acting as a deterrent the execution had the contrary effect of inciting to murder.

Some years ago a woman of Geneva, named Lombardi, killed her four children. She admitted that she had been reading of a woman who killed her husband, and the very circumstantial account had made her wish to imitate the crime, but as her husband was dead she killed the children. This is only one instance out of hundreds which have come to our notice.

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medic told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by imitating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. A Barn-Door Picture

There was a little door at the far end of the barn, left open with a bar across. Through that you looked down a slope steeper than any you ever saw to a ravine where water ran, but beyond that was nothing but the white wall of the rain and clouds in the trees. Presently a mystery was brought to pass. The white wall of the rain receded. The clouds lifted from the trees. As the world grew lighter the clouds lifted higher and higher. Fascinated, you watched them roll up like a giant curtain at a play, and ever as they rolled beneath them were more trees. Did the hill go up forever? As the first sun shaft, level, for the sun was now near to setting, shot into the ravine and the trees shot back flashes of diamond, the clouds rolled up quicker, higher, blew off into nothingness with a whisk of vapor, and before your astonished eyes the trees went up, shoulder on green shoulder, and then the rocks, and then the sharp summit against the sky. And all this you saw through the little barn door while the horses stamped behind you and your father talked with the farmer in dim, far-off tones, and there was the smell of hay.

You looked back lingeringly, as the wagon drove out on the sloppy road, into the chilled air. Your mountain still shot up in the middle of the picture. Outside, you saw other mountains, higher, blue, budding into the distance. But none of them was so wonderful as that behind, nor ever would be. It came out of the mist of rain; it came framed alone. — From "Barn Doors," by Walter Pritchard Eaton in the August Scribner (Fiction Number).

The Cheap or the Good?

When you ask for paint remember the following facts:
1st. Time costs more than paint.
2nd. One gallon of good paint covers twice the surface a cheap paint will cover.
3rd. The cost of applying a gallon of good paint is only about half the cost of applying a poor one.
4th. When you use a cheap paint you must repaint on an average of every two years—sometimes oftener.
5th. Good paint always leaves the surface to be repainted in good condition—while a cheap paint leaves the surface in a condition that necessitates scraping before repainting.

Dressing the Hair

Under no condition wear a Grecian knot if you have a tip tilted nose. A silhouette view of plebeian features and a classic coiffure is hardly appropriate. Instead, dress the hair low at the nape of the neck or upon the crown of the head. Do not forget, either, that dark hair should be smoothly dressed, and where it lies close to the head should shine like satin. Light hair should be arranged as loosely as possible in order to bring out the prettiest tints and hues. If the line from the chin to the crown of the head is long the mass of hair should be poised just where it will break that line. If the line is too short for a regular contour, cover the deficiency and supply the needed fullness by coiffing the hair so as to lengthen this line.

We are reliably informed that there is no truth in the statement that certain citizens are thinking of getting out an injunction to restrain our local ice dealers from permitting water to drip from their wagons upon the streets, lanes and alleys of the town.

THE WATER QUESTION

The question of having an adequate supply of water for our town is one of sufficient importance to justify the call for a town meeting to discuss ways and means of securing a sufficient supply.

A NATIONAL SCANDAL

Scandalous is a mild term with which to describe some of the things that have been done in connection with the tariff bill, now uppermost in the minds of the people of the nation, which has been framed by the "friends of the tariff."

It is difficult for the lay mind to get away from the idea that all legislation is for the welfare and general good of the nation, but the recent revelation that the duty on gloves has been tenaciously held to principally for the benefit of one Littauer, a glove manufacturer and a friend of Speaker Cannon and his former chore boy, Vice President Sherman, is an eye-opener to the people. Littauer was a conspicuous figure in Washington. He made the Speaker's room his headquarters and from there directed the movements of the robber hosts, using the Speaker, the Vice President and others, lesser lights, in his manipulations.

Such shames, disgraces and outrages on a too credulous public are common, but they seldom reach the plane of scandal because they are not found out. Another instance, now glaring in all its hideousness before the public eye, is the persistent effort to keep an unnecessary tax on lumber for the particular benefit of the Michigan lumberman, Fordney. Far better that the consumer should receive some benefit from tariff legislation than that the coffers of one man or set of men be filled to overflowing.

It is high time that the voting public wakes up and elects lawmakers who cannot be lured by golden graft, men who will neither break "political promises nor personal pledges;" men who will do their plain duty.

It would seem that class legislation has reached its acme. It is time for the people to take hold of the wheel and turn the beak of the national bark toward the port of the plain people.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Magnificent Scenery Around Asheville, N. C.

Asheville, N. C., July 26.

Here between the Blue Ridge on the east and the Great Smoky Mountains on the west, lies the beautiful Asheville plateau, some 6,000 square miles in area, with a general elevation of over 2,000 feet above the sea level. Hills, valleys and rivers have so diversified this greatly-favored section of country that it presents a scene of grandeur, beauty and fertility seldom seen anywhere. Then again the climatic features of this section have made it a much-sought health resort, receiving a swarm of visitors from the north in winter and a host from all the southern states seek the cool, bracing air of its mountains.

Asheville has the greatest elevation of any city east of Denver. Its situation at the junction of the beautiful Swannanoa River and the French Broad in a valley from which the great, high mountains seem to have receded, is a most picturesque one. From Asheville to the Tennessee line the Southern Railroad stretches its rails winding hither and thither around the mountains and streams, wherever a grade can be had. One moment you are away up rounding some knob of the mountain, and then looking out of the window one sees the track hundreds of feet below, as it were.

The whole region is one of great local-interest. Only in one other locality I know does nature draw her lines more closely, and that is the view from many of the peaks of the Alleghenies. Round about Asheville horse-back riding is much indulged in and one can see on any pleasant day many enjoying this. But few horses are bred hereabouts. Most of those used for saddle horses in Asheville are bred in Kentucky and some in Tennessee. Many fine mounts are to be seen. The tourist lives out of doors, as it were; climbing the mountains is among the amusements, many peaks being considered near enough for a day's excursion.

While the roads in February and March are like those at home, yet at all other seasons they are fairly good; they are smooth and hard. The wood roads, or drives through the woods, at the season of bloom of the mountain laurel are beautiful and one seems to be driving through an immense flower bed, without a particle of fragrance. Chestnuts, hickories, black gums and maples, with here and there a black walnut, are to be found, although most of the merchantable timber has been marketed. An enumeration of the different varieties of the trees native to this section would be difficult. Black Mountain with its two branches is over twenty miles long; it bears many of the highest peaks of the region in its twenty miles extent.

"The land of the sky" so generally bestowed upon Western Carolina is not merely fancy. Many a point in this mountain region allows one to reach an elevation above the clouds and look down on the mists below. There is no section of country or city that is more thoroughly advertised than this, about which I have been writing. Southwest from Asheville, some 40 miles away, lies the gorge of the Nantahala River through which the Memphis branch of the Southern passes. By many this gorge is considered the most picturesque. I only wish that I could describe it to you. The grades some places are over a hundred feet to the mile, and the great iron horse blows and snorts as he climbs the mountain sides with his load of three cars—baggage and express car, car for white folks and one for colored folks, called down this way the "Jim Crow" car.

Sidney Lanier, the southern artist-poet, says of the Swannanoa River: "Swannanoa, nymph of beauty. I would woo thee with my rhyme! Brightest, gladdest, sunniest, river Of our sunny Southern clime."

It was Christian Reid, the celebrated novelist, who gave to Western North Carolina that name by which it is so generally known—"The land of the sky."

Since the close of the war thousands of persons from the northern states have found relief from pulmonary diseases in this section of the Blue Ridge. The centre is Asheville, with a permanent population of 18,000, swelled at all seasons from the northern states in winter months and from the southern states in the heated season. The mercury registered 79 the day I was there, and the same day it registered 92 in Washington. The white folks of North Carolina are called "tar heels" but why they were thus named I have never learned. Am now working north at a rate of twenty towns a week.

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

TARIFF AGREEMENT

President Wins About All He Asks in Compromise

OIL AND HIDES ARE FREE

Senate Duties Stand on Lumber, Coal, Iron Ore and Print Paper—Gloves and Hosiery Higher.

Washington, July 28.—The conferees have at last agreed upon a new tariff bill. The Republican members of the conference committee today submitted the agreement to the Democratic members, and tomorrow the report will be made to the House.

President Taft has won practically all he contended for in the way of free raw material and reduced rates of duties.

From the best information obtainable it appears that the House and President Taft have won the battle for free hides and oil and increased rates on gloves and hosiery, in return for a surrender to the Senate on lumber, coal, iron ore and print paper. The rates on these schedules, as they have been tentatively arranged pending the acceptance by both houses of the program for a reduction in the duties on manufactures of leather below the rates fixed by the House, are as follows:

The Disputed Schedules

Oil, free; hides, free.

Coal, 45 cents a ton; print paper, $3.50 a ton; iron ore, 15 cents a ton.

Lumber, rough, $1.50 a thousand feet; one side finished, $2; two sides finished, $2.25; three sides finished, which may include tonguing and grooving, $2.62½; four sides finished, $3.

Gloves, $4 per dozen pairs, not exceeding 14 inches in length, which is the standard length. Exceeding 14 inches, 35 cents per dozen is added for each inch. This rate does not apply to the Schmaschen, or cheap glove, on which the Senate rate of $1.25 per dozen pairs is retained. The latter rate is a reduction from the Dingley rates, but the House rates accepted on the higher grades of gloves represent heavy increases over existing rates.

Hosiery, valued at $1 or less per dozen pairs, 70 cents, as against the Senate and existing rate of 50 cents. On values up to $2 the rate is slightly in excess of existing duties and a shading below the rates fixed by the House. On the highest grades the Senate and House rates were identical.

Conferees Sworn to Secrecy

Although new oaths of secrecy were taken by every member of the conference committee, it is well understood that the foregoing rates represent the understanding that has been reached on all the subjects which engaged executive attention during the last few weeks. As the house passed the bill coal was made dutiable at 67 cents a ton, with slack at the same rate, but reciprocal provision had the effect of putting coal on the free list. The Senate contended for a duty on coal, and a compromise on 45 cents a ton was accepted in lieu of the House rate and the free reciprocal arrangement. Slack was made dutiable at 15 cents a ton.

The House put iron ore on the free list and the Senate fixed the rate at 25 cents a ton, but the conferees have agreed to accept a rate of 15 cents.

The House Program

In the House the program has been mapped out for the disposition of the report. As a lower rate of duty on leather goods has been agreed to than is in the House or Senate bills, a rule will be brought in with the report providing that no point of order shall be against this schedule. This will give it proper parliamentary status and prevent debate or the opening up of other schedules to similar amendments. There is no doubt of a sufficient majority in the House for the adoption of the report. Notices have been sent out to every Republican member to be in his seat tomorrow to be ready to vote on the report.

Another final agreement on the tariff bill was reached by the conference committee this afternoon and Senator Aldrich and Chairman Payne passed the evening at the White House proving to the President that it is satisfactory.

The final agreement reached yesterday was kicked to pieces by a delegation of House men who informed the President last night that the House would not accept the Senate rates on lumber, and the President's own declaration that the high House rates on gloves should not remain in the bill. Both of these had been included in the agreement of yesterday and it was expected the President would accept them. When it was found this morning that the House members were in revolt the conference committee set to work to frame another agreement.

It is now understood that the rate on lumber is to be $1.25 a thousand feet, instead of $1.50, and that the Senate rates on gloves, which are the

FORTY PLAYGROUNDS BY THE SEA.

This is seashore time.

The dog days call to the worker in home, office, and mill and the answer brings up thoughts of the many resorts beside the sea where comfort, recreation, and pleasure alike await the coming of the holiday-maker.

Along the shores of New Jersey from Cape May to Sandy Hook lie forty beaches, each offering delights for outings long or short and each easily accessible by the splendid train service of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Atlantic City, with its myriad attractions for young and old, needs no introduction, for its charms are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Cape May, for a century the summering place of satisfied thousands of seekers after cool breezes, fine bathing, and the refined amusements of the seaside, is more attractive than ever in its new life.

Ocean City, Wildwood, Sea Isle City, with their smaller neighbors, Angelsea, Holly Beach, Wildwood Crest, Avalon, and Stone Harbor, afford summer pleasure to thousands.

To the north lie Beach Haven, Seaside Park, Island Heights and the other resorts about Barnegat Bay, where the lover of fishing and sailing finds the choicest sport.

Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Spring Lake, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Point Pleasant, Allenhurst, Elberon, and Belmar on the Upper Coast where the country meets the sea right on the beach, appeal with mighty force to the vacationist.

Sixteen-day excursions to the majority of these resorts, at specially low rates, leave on August 12, 26, and September 9.

Any Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Agent will be glad to give full information regarding excursion rates, time of trains and arrange your outing whether it be for a day, a week, a fortnight, or the whole summer.

Dingley rates, shall remain. This is a reduction of 25 cents on lumber and means that the special rates of duty imposed in the House bill for the benefit of Lucius N. Lattauer, personal friend of Speaker Cannon and Vice President Sherman, shall not be made a part of the law.

Lesson V.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 1, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xviii, 1-22. Memory Verses, 9, 10—Golden Text, John xvi, 23—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Whether we see results from the word preached or not, we know that His word will always accomplish His pleasure and will never return to Him void (Isa. lv, 11), so we may continue to sow the incorruptible seed with the full assurance that He will watch over His word to perform it (Jer. i, 12, R. V.) and that every purpose of the Lord shall be performed both against His enemies and for His people (Jer. li, 20; Isa. xiv, 24). He often encourages us, however, by showing us quick results from the sowing, and even at Athens there were a number of believers, among them a very prominent man and a woman and others with them. Paul passed from Athens over to Corinth, a city as noted for its wickedness as Athens was for its wisdom, and here he abode a year and six months and gathered many souls from all kinds of people. See the different kinds of sinners mentioned in 1 Cor. vi, 9-11, and note this saying concerning them: "But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God." What a great Saviour thus to be able to cleanse such sinners and wholly without any works on their part! Paul thought so much of such a gospel that he said, "We were allowed by God to be put in trust with the gospel." "The gospel of God concerning His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, of the seed of David, the Son of God, with power by the resurrection from the dead" (1 Thess. ii, 4; Rom. i, 1-4). At Corinth Paul found a man named Aquila, of the same craft as himself, who, with his wife, Priscilla, had been expelled from Italy because they were Jews, and with them he abode and worked at his trade of tentmaking, for, although he believed and taught that they who preached the gospel should live of the gospel (1 Cor. ix, 14), he himself took pleasure in not being a burden to any.

As his custom was, he reasoned out of the Scriptures every Sabbath day in the synagogue, testifying to the Jews that Jesus is the Christ. While the topics of preachers today are with out number, these men had but one—viz. Jesus Christ crucified, risen and returning to establish His kingdom on earth, saving all who come to Him and sharing His glory with them. Jesus was the center and circumference of all they had to say. When the Jews opposed and blasphemed he turned from them to the gentiles, but not without fruit, for the chief ruler of the synagogue believed. Leaving the synagogue, he taught in the house of a believer named Justus, who lived next door, and many of the Corinthians believed and were baptized, though Paul himself baptized very few. Writing to them later, he mentioned Crispus, Gaius and the household of Stephanas as the only ones he could remember as being baptized by him, for he said, "Christ sent me, not to baptize, but to preach the gospel."

With all his knowledge of the Lord and personal acquaintance with Him, there came times of depression and loneliness, as in 11 Cor. ii, 13; vii, 6, and evidently of fear, for the Lord never says "Fear not; be not afraid" unless there is some occasion for it, and it is most helpful to notice the fears of His redeemed ones which drew from Him these words from time to time. The message at this time must have been just what he specially needed, "Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace, for I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee, for I have much people in this city" (verses 9, 10). Paul had been set upon and hurt in other places, stoned to death, beaten, imprisoned, and it may be that the flesh shrank from further ill treatment at this time. He wrote to these people, "I was with you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling" (1 Cor. ii, 3). This message was spoken to Paul by the Lord, but it is written here for all who need it and as they need it. Let no one who needs it hesitate to take it.

He wants us to speak His message boldly, conscious of His presence always and aiming only to please Him and never to please people (1 Thess. ii, 4; Gal. i, 10). Paul was arrested and brought before Gallio's judgment seat, but speedily released when he saw that no crime had been committed. Sosthenes, whom Paul calls "our brother" (1 Cor. i, 1), received the beating this time and doubtless rejoiced to be counted worthy to suffer for Christ's sake. Paul returned to Antioch via Ephesus, Caesarea and Jerusalem. He took Priscilla and Aquila as far as Ephesus and left them there, and there he found them doing good work when he returned to Ephesus on his third tour. We shall have four lessons from the epistles to the Corinthians are the year closes, but here we feel led to call attention to the apostle's teaching concerning the return of Christ, as we did briefly at the beginning of this lesson to the benefits of the atonement. See especially 1 Cor. i, 7; iv, 5; xi, 26; xv, 50-54; xvi, 22, and may we all be found filled with this blessed hope and in even our eating and drinking glorifying God (1 Cor. x, 31).

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Home of Swamp-Root, Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Aura

Around each one there is a luminous mist which corresponds to the atmosphere around the earth. In this atmosphere, called the aura, the thoughts, good and bad, strong and weak, are imprinted. The body corresponds to the earth, the emotions to the dew and rain. The mental conditions are like the wind, while the spiritual acts as the sunshine, in vitalizing the reality of self.—Science and Key of Life

Summer Frocks Will Have Coats to Match—Expensive, but Smart.

The new skirts have as many as seven and nine gores with panels set in the seams. Next summer there will be no such thing as a separate coat for any dress. Most every frock will be made in three piece style.

The newest and smartest gowns are not using as many tucked net yokes as formerly, but the tucks may have a revival in the summer.

The charming little bridge coat slipped on over any simple evening dress is an exceedingly smart accessory.

The gown illustrated is wonderfully smart and stylish. The fashionable panel front is emphasized by the trim-

Modish Trimmings For the New Millinery—An Empire Nightgown.

Big bows are the modish trimmings for the slant waist hats. The return of this style of a year ago will gladden the heart of the tailor made girl. For making these bows materials by the yard are better than ribbons, as they make more graceful loops. A thin light make of taffeta or messaline is the favorite material for simple hats.

A butterfly in lifelike guise is poised lightly on the edge of hat brims. Very inexpensive ones are of Mexican silver. One little beauty was of filigree metal, with coral on the wings.

An exceeding pretty new model in an empire nightgown is of nainsook. There is a short body supporting a full skirt. The body is formed by alternate rows of lace and lawn and is cut low in the neck. A wide tucker of lace draws up with ribbons. The sleeves are puffs of lace and lawn following the lines of the yoke and end in dainty lace ruffles. The price is $2.50.

The coat illustrated is attractive made of pongee, rajah or chiffon broadcloth. The fronts are gored to the shoulders, and it is slightly fitted at the back. The garment may be easily turned out at home for the reason that it hangs from the shoulders and requires little fitting.

A pattern of this coat may be had in six sizes—from 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number (456), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail.
